SHORT DESCRIPTION OF THE PROJECT, COLLABORATION AND TOOLS USED

Two schools from Croatia and Romania (I.gimnazija Osijek and Colegiul Tehnic Ana Aslan) collaborated on the project called Safe clicking. They focused on the topics of personal data protection and illegal digital content. The students of both schools collaborated through Facebook and emails and they used the Resources section on Consumer Classroom website as a help. Together they created a survey on Google Docs about personal data protection, which was filled out online by students of both schools. They also debated on the given topics, exchanged their opinions and decided that Romanian school would make a video about personal data protection and Croatian school would make a video about illegal digital content. After the videos were made, a poster was created together, which contains two above-mentioned videos, one video showing the results of the survey and the link to the survey.
